

TALK HEARD OF BANK FOR STOCK EXCHANGE

Brokers Discuss Changes in Old System of Borrowing on Their Notes.

NO ACTION TAKEN YET

National City and Mechanics and Metals Considering New Plan.

Discussion of the reorganizing of the relation between banks and stock brokers in the matter of loans, which is planned by some of the banks, reached the stage yesterday where members of the Stock Exchange revived talk of a Stock Exchange bank.

It is understood that at least two of the large national banks, the National City and the Mechanics and Metals, which lost the recent Supreme Court cases, are planning changes in their method of lending on stock exchange collateral. It is understood that other banks are considering changes.

A number of stock exchange men assert, however, that they have received assurance from the banks that they will continue the old system of lending on stock exchange notes as at the beginning of the day to be followed by deposit of the securities before the close of business.

The suggestion for a Stock Exchange bank was discussed rather as a possibility than an immediate probability. Brokers need it to illustrate their contention that the banks have received large profits from the business of the stock exchange which could be conserved to the members of the exchange through such a bank if it were not that the exchange is opposed to engaging in any business venture by reason of its nature, a more market place.

The brokers' contention is that their concentrated cash deposits with the banks, from which it is asserted the banks receive no return, results in a yearly profit to the banks of more than $1,000,000 outside of the big profits it is asserted the banks receive on their collateral loans to brokers.

Discussion of the whole question yesterday was largely precipitated by a mysterious telephone call received in the financial offices of most of the banks, over the telephone that the National City Bank was ready to make an announcement that together with the Mechanics and Metals National Bank and the Chase and Phoenix National Bank it had decided to abolish the system of overcollateralization on day loans.

At the National City Bank it was said that no such action had been taken and that no telephone messages had been sent and that somebody must have been impersonating an official of the bank.

Discussion of the new method to be pursued in the making of day loans among the banks is entirely informal and whatever action is taken will be entirely independent of the stock exchange bank. It is probable that on December 1, or possibly not until January 1, some change will be made by banks now considering such action. It is understood that informal talks have been held between some of the banks and their customers on this point.

A number of the larger banks and trust companies do not now lend on call on the Stock Exchange except on immediate deposit of collateral securities. The new method to be pursued in the making of day loans made under the present system.

The Stock Exchange attitude on this is that a guarantee of deposits, which the bankers term "Bryanism" in the case of banks should not be required of them.

Several of the larger banks are in effect putting it up to the Stock Exchange to devise a method where the banks will be better guaranteed. The Stock Exchange as a body will offer no solution.

NEW TRANSIT ROUTE HELD P.

Appeal to Be Made to Court Over Gravesend Avenue Elevated.

The Public Service Commission yesterday issued its decision in the appeal of the Gravesend Avenue Elevated Railroad Company against the decision of the Public Service Commission in the case of the Gravesend Avenue Elevated Railroad Company.

The proposed route is along Gravesend Avenue from Thirty-ninth street to Coney Island, running into and over property owned by the Gravesend Avenue Elevated Railroad Company.

The railroad company has declined to give consent for its property, valued at $50,000, and under the law this refusal blocks the legalization of the route and makes it necessary to apply to the Public Service Commission.

LARGER DIVIDEND DEMANDED.

Brooklyn Union Gas Minority Envoys Directors' Meetings.

The annual meeting of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company yesterday was enlivened by the renewed demand of the minority stockholders' committee, composed of W. Bourke Cockran, Thomas Reed and Nathan Levy, for an increase of the dividend rate from 8 to 9 percent.

The minority demanded that the regular dividend amounting to 4 1/2 percent, which they say is due as the result of dividend reduction in the past, should be paid off at a more rapid rate than the present 2 percent in addition to the regular dividend of 6 percent.

Nothing was done in the matter and the officers of the company did not indicate what action the directors may take at their next meeting. The same board of directors was re-elected.

The minority committee, with the exception of their demand that the dividend be increased, had nothing but praise for the financial condition of the company and its management. It presented a report showing that the payment of the regular dividend, in its opinion, was warranted by the fact that despite extraordinary heavy charges and special franchise taxes paid the net income for the year was enough to permit of a surplus of $4,425,475, the dividend payments taking only 70 percent of the net income.

AQUEDUCT SHAFT TRIED OUT.

Water From Ashokan Dam Flows About Six Miles.

Newburgh, N. Y., Nov. 11.—For the first time yesterday, water from the Ashokan dam was sent through one of the shafts of the New York aqueduct. It was permitted to flow into shaft No. 1 at the Ashokan dam, a point 200 feet below the surface and was then carried under the Rondout Valley for about six miles.

It was the first practical test of one of the water-shafting of the aqueduct and was entirely successful. All the water shafts will be tested in the same way one at a time until the whole system has been tried out.

With the exception of a little more work in the Garrison tunnel the aqueduct is now practically completed from High Falls to the Hillville reservoir on the outskirts of New York city.
